

SECTION VIII.

To those who preside over light, &c., men who collect fuel, firemen and the like, ditto,	353
---	-----

SECTION IX.

To those who preside over rapid motion, elephant-keepers, grooms, &c. ditto,	354
---	-----

SECTION X.

To those who are the presiding divinities of violent passions, &c., ironsmiths, men who run away with criminals con- demned to death, and the like, ditto,	354
--	-----

SECTION XI.

To the wife of Yama, women who have borne twins, to those who preside over the mantras of the Atharva Veda, women who have miscarried, &c. &c.,	356
---	-----

SECTION XII.

To those Devas who preside over tanks, ponds, &c., men who catch fish by putting up embankments (Dhivara), or by hooks (Dása) and the like, ditto,	357
--	-----

SECTION XIII.

To those who preside over sounds, echoes, &c., collectors of news, retailers of incoherent speech, and the like, ditto,	358
--	-----

SECTION XIV.

To those who delight in detecting evil, delight in splendour, &c. men who are always watchful, very sleepy, &c., ditto,	359
--	-----

SECTION XV.

To the presiding divinities of wit, song, &c., prostitutes, fe- male players on the Víná , and the like, ditto,	359
---	-----