

CHAPTER FOURTH.

ON HUMAN SACRIFICES.*

SECTION I.

To Devas who claim to be of the castes of Bráhmaṇa, Kshatriya, &c., men of the Bráhmaṇa, Khastriya, and the like castes, are to be sacrificed, 346

SECTION II.

To those who claim pre-eminence in singing, dancing, &c., men of the Súta, Sáilusha, and the like castes, ditto, .. 347.

SECTION III.

To those who are the presiding divinities of labour, magic, &c., men of the potter, ironsmith, and the like castes, ditto, .. 348

SECTION IV.

To those who are the presiding divinities of (abhimáni) or delight in promiscuous intercourse (sañghataka), bastards and the like, ditto, 349

SECTION V.

To those who preside over rivers, desert places, &c., men of the Kaivarta (fishermen) Nisháda (hunters) and the like castes, ditto, 350

SECTION VI.

To those who delight in marring human exertion, &c., hunchbacks, dwarfs, and the like, ditto, 351

SECTION VII.

To those who preside over robbery, &c., thieves, scandal-mongers, and the like, ditto, 352

* Each section enumerates several different kinds of divinities and the human sacrifices most appropriate for them; the above Index gives only the first two items of each section.