

EIGHTH BOOK.

ON THE OPERATIONS OF THE FIRST DAY OF THE ASVAMEDHA SACRIFICE.

SECTION I.

Preparations for the Asvamedha—the duties of the Yajamāna.

- 1.—Ordination that the Saṅgrahanī sacrifice should be performed on the full moon of Chaitra, ... 563
- 2.—The rope for tying the horse should be of either kus'a or munja grass, 12 or 13 cubits (aratni) long, each cubit being equal to 24 fingers' breadth,* ... 563
- 3.—The Nakshatra most appropriate for the beginning of the asvamedha (chitrā), ... 564
- 4.—The place fit for the sacrifice—a sacred spot where the gods may be worshipped, ... ib.
- 5.—The mode of bringing the R̥itivijas, ... ib.
- 6.—Shaving, ablution, and new dress necessary,... 565

SECTION II.

The Sacred Rice.

- 1.—Four kinds of water necessary for the cooking, pluvial, puteal, lacustrine, and fluviatile, ... 566
- 2.—The four quarters from which the waters are to be collected, ib.
- 3.—The rice to be cooked with the above waters, ... 567
- 4.—The quantity of rice to be cooked—four sarāva or platterfuls, ... ib.
- 5.—Gold to be placed above and below the cooked rice; clarified butter to be liberally poured thereupon. The four officiating priests to eat the same; the gold to be presented to them as dakshinā, or honorarium, ... ib.
- 6.—The munja or kusa rope with which the horse has to be tied should be steeped in the clarified butter which will remain after the priest have eaten the rice, ... 568

* The aratni measures from the point of the elbow to the tip of the little finger.